

Church Street Preschool welcomed law enforcement, fire department and EMS to share with the children how their agencies help keep the community safe.

Yancey local heroes visited Church Street Preschool

Recently, Church Street Preschool students participated in Local Hero Day.

The children welcomed some special visitors from the Burnsville Fire Department, Yancey County Sheriff's Office, Burnsville Police Department, and EMS.

All three preschool classes learned how our local heroes protect and help those in our community.

The children also had fun walking around the vehicles, dressing up in uniforms, and receiving gifts from the employees of these agencies.

Church Street Preschool would like to thank all of the agencies and the representatives who took time to visit the students and help them understand the important role each serves locally. We appreciate you!

Church Street Preschool is a non-profit cooperative for 3-5 year-old children, and the school focuses on learning experiences in a supportive environment.

ATRC offers Read to a Steed Program for kids

Appalachian Therapeutic Riding Center is offering a new program for elementary school age children who need some extra help and encouragement on their reading skills.

It has been proven that reading to an animal helps students who have difficulty in other settings. Horses are good listeners. And, they never criticize the reader!

Many children are experiencing learning challenges during this time. Covid-19 has changed their regular school schedule.

ATRC would like to offer some literacy support in a non-traditional setting.

Sessions last for 30 minutes. There are morning slots available for children in virtual school and afternoon slots for those attending class in school.

This will begin as a four-week trial and can be continued depending on interest and improvement.

Children will read to their chosen horse and a trained volunteer who can help with reading and comprehension.

Take home assignments relating to the child's horse will be provided. The connection with the horse will spark interest in learning more in many reluctant readers.

A small fee will be charged to help feed the horses.

There will be a limit of two participants at a time. All Covid-19 protocols will be followed. This includes everyone at the barn wearing a mask.

For more information about the program or ATRC, contact Miika Rolett at: call 675-5630 or email atrcriding@gmail.com or 828-675-5630
